EdupUNK

EDUCATION

Jim Groom

EDUCATION

Edupunk is a do it yourself (DIY) attitude to teaching and learning practices. Tom Kuntz described edupunk as "an approach to teaching that avoids mainstream tools like PowerPoint and Blackboard, and instead aims to bring the rebellious attitude and DIY ethos of '70s bands like The Clash to the classroom." Many instructional applications can be described as DIY education or edupunk.

The term was first used on May 25, 2008, by Jim Groom in his blog, and covered less than a week later in the Chronicle of Higher Education. Stephen Downes, an online education theorist and an editor for the International Journal of Instructional Technology and Distance Learning, noted that "the concept of edupunk has totally caught wind, spreading through the blogosphere like wildfire".

EDUCATION

We thought we were using tech tools to emancipate and empower students and ourselves, now it often feels as if we have enslaved ourselves.

Have we ended up tethered to our technology?

Critical Teaching for Social Change

IRA SHOR

“Habits of thought, reading, writing, and speaking which go beneath surface meaning, first impressions, dominant myths, official pronouncements, traditional clichés, received wisdom, and mere opinions, to understand the deep meaning, root causes, social context, ideology, and personal consequences of any action, event, object, process, organization, experience, text, subject matter, policy, mass media, or discourse.” (p129)

“Part of teaching is helping people create themselves”

CRITICAL PEDAGOGY

CRITICAL PEDAGOGY

Maxine Greene

“Without the ability to think about yourself, to reflect on your life, there's really no awareness, no consciousness. Consciousness doesn't come automatically; it comes through being alive, awake, curious, and often furious.”

CRITICALITY

Critical Consciousness

...focuses on achieving an in-depth understanding of the world, allowing for the perception and exposure of social and political contradictions. Critical consciousness also includes taking action against the oppressive elements in one's life that are illuminated by that understanding.

Wide Awakeness

...describes a degree of consciousness necessary for actors to critically and deliberately make choices and have impact on the world.

...assumes that an individual who actively perceives as they experience the world would be equipped to pose meaningful questions and potentially to enact change.

CRITICALITY

Etham Hawke

"To be or not to be" ...
...is not whether to kill yourself or not, its asking the question, are you going to be awake and present for your life."

CRITICALITY

George Bernard Shaw

The reasonable man adapts himself to the world; the unreasonable one persists in trying to adapt the world to himself.

Therefore, all progress depends on the unreasonable man.

CHEERFULL ROBOTS

C. Wright Mills

The individual who does not exercise reason and passively accepts their social position is referred to as "The Cheerful Robot" in which the individual is alienated from the self and society totally.

FRANKFURT SCHOOL

Herbert Marcuse

This results in a "one-dimensional" universe of thought and behavior, in which aptitude and ability for critical thought and oppositional behavior wither away.

QUOTE

“It was the best of times, it was the worst of times, it was the age of wisdom, it was the age of foolishness, it was the epoch of belief, it was the epoch of incredulity, it was the season of Light, it was the season of Darkness, it was the spring of hope, it was the winter of despair, we had everything before us, we had nothing before us...”
